

ENGLISH | MARC HUCKLE | @ www.intercambioidiomasonline.com

Intercambio Idiomas Online

C1 LANGUAGES ARE UNIQUE

1. The fact that each language is unique is what makes each and every one of them so interesting. Do you agree with this statement?
2. If all languages were completely translatable, would picking them up be more straightforward?
3. What is the most frustrating part about trying to master a foreign language?
4. Is it important to try to conserve minority languages such as Basque, Welsh and Breton?
5. How far does one's culture influence their ability to learn a language?
6. Many people state that the future of language learning lies in online platforms, do you think it's true?
7. Is there an important connection between your native language and the way you think?
8. It is widely rumoured that language learning is far more difficult as an adult. What is your view on the topic?
9. If learning a language were simply a matter of translating word for word, would it be worth doing?
10. Would you consider learning a language to be an art form or an exact science?
11. Learning a language is not only fun and games, it requires hard effort. Would you see the process in the same way?
12. With the invention of devices that can provide simultaneous interpretation, why is it still worth learning a language in this day and age?
13. What are the main upsides of knowing more than one language?
14. Would you say that monolingual people are generally more narrow-minded?
15. What can the learning of a language teach us about ourselves?