That is so annoying!

Everyone has a pet hate. That does not mean that they dislike animals, but rather something that makes their blood boil. Whether it be people who are always late, lies or people who never shut up. However, the issue at hand here is why should we allow things that are out of our control to get on our nerves? We are the owners of our own mindset and we should be able to distance ourselves from this input to be capable of living a stress-free life. The trick is basically to live in the present, to not have remorse or regret, or even allow other people's mood or actions to, in effect, ruin our personal happiness.
