

USE OF ENGLISH (PART 2): OPEN CLOZE

English weather

England is famous for many things: fish and chips, cups of tea, Mary Poppins, bad food and _____ (1) worse weather. The climate of _____ (2) great island nation is challenging to say _____ (3) least and has become a hot topic of recent times in Europe. While the English language remains strong and may even be increasing _____ (4) importance, people certainly do not want to learn English in order _____ (5) come and live here. What many people fail to see is that there is a hidden kind of beauty to this type of weather. The reason it is _____ (6) great is because it is so unpredictable. There really are four very distinct seasons in the UK and you never know _____ (7) you are going to get. Nine times out of ten, the weather will turn and you will end up getting caught in a shower, but that one day _____ (8) of ten the weather is pleasant, you will feel a great sense of joy that you cannot understand coming from more stable climates. The real issue in England that is so depressing is the light, not so much the weather. The dull skies and darkness can really get on your nerves.

English weather

England is famous for many things: fish and chips, cups of tea, Mary Poppins, bad food and even worse weather. The climate of this great island nation is challenging to say the least and has become a hot topic of recent times in Europe. While the English language remains strong and may even be increasing in importance, people certainly do not want to learn English in order to come and live here. What many people fail to see is that there is a hidden kind of beauty to this type of weather. The reason it is so great is because it is so unpredictable. There really are four very distinct seasons in the UK and you never know what you are going to get. Nine times out of ten, the weather will turn and you will end up getting caught in a shower, but that one day out of ten the weather is pleasant, you will feel a great sense of joy that you cannot understand coming from more stable climates. The real issue in England that is so depressing is the light, not so much the weather. The dull skies and darkness can really get on your nerves.