Your Past

You can't change the past, but in all honesty, it does have an impact on your present and even your future. Humans are inclined to use their past experiences to guide their decisions as a form of defense mechanism to avoid future mistakes. Using the past in a reflexive manner can be to a person's advantage, but one should not dwell on the past and allow it to, in effect, ruin their lives. We should always try to impartially be open to new opportunities without allowing the past to cloud our judgment. It is a good idea to focus on the present for two reasons: to live a happy life and also to be present, without remorse or regret because at the end of the day. When we meet our demise, the norm is to regret the things that we have not done and not the mistakes we made along the way. At the end of the day, life is a journey and we should see all of our experiences as part of that journey, not something we should allow to cause us stress or remorse.
